Truth for Germany: An Interview (Powerwolf Publications Book 5) V. K. Clark, Mourning the Ancient 'Mourning the Ancient' (mourningtheancient.com) interviews V. K. Clark on World War II Germany and National Socialism. Already banned on Amazon Europe!

Readers will learn a tremendous amount about Hitler and National Socialism from just this one interview. For starters, they will encounter an oft-ignored side to Adolf Hitler. He was a remarkable human being. As one of his oldest secretaries recently noted, he was a very generous, caring, unselfish person who took an interest in the comforts and lives of those around him. Such a huge man, perhaps the most powerful in the world at the time – certainly the most loved leader – cared about the lives of the so-called ‘minions’. And he did not live lavishly or demand much either. He even traveled without security and in an open car most of his life. Nonetheless we’re all expected to believe he was a genocidal megalomaniac and psychopath, a man who simply used Germany to realize his own grotesque delusions of grandeur and war gaming. Obviously too few people know the truth about Stalin, FDR and Churchill. Hitler did everything he did for the commoners, the caste to which he himself belonged. He emerged from among the masses – was elected – and pulled off one of the greatest economic miracles in human history.
